Welcome contestants!

Times of work, times of leisure

You've done it! After working hard for five hours, the contestants finished the first day of contest. But times of hard work demand times of leisure. And so this day will introduce you to the nice countryside, some sights and will give you the opportunity to exercise a little bit. So this magazine will deal with what comes up today, but we will as well give a glance back to yesterday's events.

CEOI connects

International Friendships

The CEOI is not merely about the given tasks. It is primarily about the people participating in it. The American and Iranian teams showed that it is also about friendship and made an example of what the CEOI is also about.

The "Biergarten"

Times of leisure

After the stress and the tension of the contest, the contestants, guests and team leaders were invited to have a tiny tour around the castle and then relax in the "Biergarten". It is a German tradition that in the summer, when the weather is warm, the people sit down outside and relax in the countryside instead of sitting in a building. That way, the contestants could relax and enjoy the countryside while participating at a genuine German tradition.

After taking another group picture in front of the castle – the symbol of the university – the contestants were happy to sit down and enjoy the nice weather. The atmosphere must have had a special influence on the delegation from the Netherlands, because they started singing "we will rock you", "hakuna matata", "eternal flame" and "sounds of silence" after half an hour. As if that wasn't enough, they stepped on their chairs and started singing even louder, much to the confusion of the waitresses.

Contest

Times of work

Yesterday the first contest session took place. Since men have met their machines a day before, there were no problems to get started and to work on the given tasks. Five hours of hard working started at 9 am and therefore the three given tasks had to be finished at 14 pm.

Quote of the day

Times of work

"Excuse me Mr. Pohl. My father would like to know, when he should be here to see my awarding ceremony..."

- Tobias Müller, Westphalian delegation.

(He tried to ask Dr. Pohl when the awarding ceremony is.)

Portraits of the Teams

Newsmag: Were your expectations met so far?

Team: (Siavash) The stack of the computer wasn't large enough.

(Leader) Our guide didn't put the contestants into bed early enough. □ That's why they missed breakfast and weren't at full energy during the contest.

N: Although your contestants didn't eat enough: Do you think you will win the contest?

T: Yes. (jokingly) We know everything.

N: How were the tasks?

T: They were not hard. They were very easy. (smiling)

N: Is this the first time for you at a CEOI?

T: Yes for the most contestants it is the first time abroad:

N: Do you have a statement you want to see in the newsletter?

T: Yesterday we walked around for two hours in Münster and we saw every spot of it □.

Newsmag: Were your expectations met so far?

Team: Perfectly fine. It's been nice.

N: Do you think you will win the contest?

T: No. We didn't drink enough.

N: Is this the first time for you at a CEOI?

T: Yes. The team leader is experienced. It's the first time for the contestants.

N: How were the tasks?

T: Appropriately hard.

N: Do you have a statement you want to see in the newsletter?

T: The steaks of this cowntest are high.
